THOUGHTS FROM THE DESK OF Rev. Jean Saddington

Remembrance Sunday this year is on 14th November. We will hold our services outside. as we did last year, at Martinstown, Winterbourne Abbas and Compton Valence (see service list for times). It is important for people to remember our past as it roots us in who we are and what is important about our national identity. Remembrance, however, is not just about the past. In the Jewish tradition, at a festival such as Passover, the past is recalled, through the telling of a story, so that it may become real and alive in the present and be effective in encouraging and directing life the furure. The service of Remembrance Sunday should have within it those elements of recalling, reliving, reconciling, rededication and hope for the future. It is in the element of reconciliation that we find the key to a future of hope. Here is a story from the town of Khatyn in Belarus that speaks of such hope.

The people of Byelorussia (now Belarus) suffered intensely in the 2nd World War. As the Germans conquered, they followed a deliberate policy of extermination of the people. In the event more than three-quarters of the population survived, but even so 2,230,000 people died.

In October 1987 the members of the Co-ordinating Committee of the Ecumenical Forum of European Christian Woman visted the site of Khatyn, one of the villages whose entire population had been exterminated. Khatyn was a small village of 26 households (about the size of Compton Valence). On 22 March 1943 the life of Khatyn came to an end. A detachment of soldiers entered the villlage and drove all the inhabitants into a barn, to which they set fire. When some of the people trapped inside tried to escape, they were mown down by machine-gun fire. One hundred and forty-nine people were exterminated, among them seventy-five children. Only one man survived. Today a great number of memorials to remember those that perished stand in the villages that were destroyed, including a black memorial slab in Khatyn where the Eternal Flame burns. The women from the Ecumenical Forum walked slowly round the village, stopping at three places to pray and sing and lay red carnations. At the end the West German woman in the party stood before the Eternal Flame in tears. She felt the guilt of the whole German nation. It was the Russian woman who went to her, put her arms round her, and said, "Don't cry; don't blame yourself. That is history. What we must make sure of now is that I never happens again. We must work for peace."

That same group of women now run a number of projects in Belarus for children who suffer as a result of the Chernobly nuclear diaster.

An extract from 'Beyond the Tears', written by Jean Mayland

I recently discovered that, around 25 years ago, some children from Belarus stayed in the Winterbourne Valley, along with their head teacher and his wife. Many villagers offered them hospitality and they were overwhelmed by the kindness they received. Belarus is a country that has suffered much. Their wounds run deep but the love and kindness of others may have gone some way to restoring their faith in humankind and given them hope of a better future.

For many years there has been a tradition of remembering in our society. This is what God asks us to do, in remembrance of Christ and of those who gave as he gave for the sake of others.

Yours in Christ, Jean

Christmas 2021 Advent Window Trail...

We are hoping to repeat the success of last year's Advent Window Trail for 2021. We already have fifteen slots taken but we need nine more window enthusiasts to take up the creative challenge.

If you would like to bring Christmas cheer to our community again whilst supporting two local charities for the homeless – the Lantern T then please pick up your phone and give me a Christmas bell.

Give the gift of a smile to your friends and neighbours, and the gift of a hot meal and a warm bed to someone less fortunate. I hope to hear from you soon.

THANK YOU from Abbas...

As most of you know by now Winterbourne Abbas had a wonderful fete in September. I really enjoyed meeting people from Martinstown and areas further afield. It was just lovely. We had an enormous amount of help from the local community for which we will be forever grateful. In the end we raised £3093 which is twice as much than previous years and has set the church on a good financial footing for this year.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank our Sponsors, without whom we could not have raised so much money.

A small group of volunteers, who had spent several Saturday mornings clearing the verge by the bus stop at Blagdon Close, were joined by a group of Beavers and their leaders on a very wet day to help plant hundreds of native bulbs and wild flower plants. Thanks you to all who worked so hard: we look forward to that area being full of colour next Spring and Summer and a much more attractive place for both people and insects.

Any donations towards the cost of bulbs, seeds and plants can be made using this code or at the website (address below).

Martinstown is planting 70 trees! All are welcome to join in the planting - families, friends, young & old - on Saturday 20th November 2021 at 11 am and at 2 pm. The remaining trees (if any) will be planted on Sunday 21st November at 1.30 pm. Unless the weather is very unkind (in which case we will put any changes on the website www.greenmartinstown.org.uk), planting will go ahead come rain or shine, so please dress appropriately and, if you have one, bring a spade & trowel. Please walk (not drive) to Grove Hill Bottom – 15 minutes walk up the bridleway opposite the Church and follow the signs.

Huge thanks to all who have donated and for your enthusiasm. If there is a particular tree you would like to plant yourself, please make sure you have told Deborah in advance (889433).

The 70 trees will be planted as part of the Queens Green Canopy, which is to celebrate the Platinum Jubilee - 70 years of the Queen's reign. (https://queensgreencanopy.org)

The planting will be a line of native broadleaf trees along the verge of the bridleway at Grove Hill bottom. It is organised by Green Martinstown. Because trees reduce climate change by absorbing CO2, as well as enjoying watching the trees flourish you can know we are doing our bit to help the planet!

If you would like to join us, can offer help, or have relevant expertise or contacts, please email us at greenmartinstown@gmail.com

It was great to see so many people at the Fish & Chip Supper and Quiz on the 27th September. After 18 months without Valley Club events it proved to be a popular evening and there was a real 'buzz' in the village hall as everyone enjoyed a welcome-back glass of wine and tucked in to their fish & chips. Many thanks to Eileen for ordering and arranging delivery of the fish & chips.

This was followed by a light-hearted quiz organised by Richard & Lynne, with the winning team being 'The Crackpot Crew (without Stu)'.

Our next event will be on Friday 3rd December at 8.00pm when we will have our Christmas Social. With mulled wine, mince pies and entertainment by the talented Winterbourne Singers, the Ukulele group(MUGS) and recorders. This is always a fun evening and will get you in the mood for Christmas, so do come along. Non-members are also welcome to attend.

We are still looking for more committee members. Welcome to Barbara Pearson, who has recently joined us, but we still need at least two others. If you are interested, please speak to any member of the committee.

THIS MONTH'S NEWS FRO

Martinstown Women's Institute

The speaker at our October meeting was Hilary Green. The title of her talk was "Births, Marriages and Deaths" – not human, as we had all expected, but animals, as she entertained us with her experiences as a vet (particularly assisting at the births of calves).

At the Gardening Club we discussed and compiled a list of plants and shrubs that will provide colour in the garden throughout the year. We held a plant swap so that everyone went home with a new perennial for their garden. Please note the next Garden Club meeting will be on Monday 8th November at 3.30 pm.

At our next WI meeting on Wednesday 10th November at 7 pm we will be having a talk on Spinning Wool from Penne Blogg.

Rendezvous 5...

Stuart Nuttall

This will be the last of the rendezvous stories, some of you will be very pleased about that!

Lost and Found

The highly manicured lawns either side of the gravel drive which led to the imposing house spoke of money. The triple garage housed a Jaguar F type, an Audi and a classic car of some vintage or other.

On the gravel was parked a Porche Cayenne and a strikingly beautiful woman was climbing out of it. Her long legs swung effortlessly onto the gravel. She pushed the car door closed and began walking, perhaps even gliding, towards the front entrance. Hard to say how old she was, early forties perhaps, but don't concern yourself, we will discover her age soon enough!

The owners of the house Bryan and Alison Dearing were looking out, alerted to the arrival of the car and the woman, by the dogs barking. They weren't expecting visitors, but Bryan was opening the door to this stranger before she had time to ring the bell. Despite his 70+ years he still had eyes for a pretty face.

The beautiful woman was smiling, a confident smile, a warm and friendly smile.

"Hi, You must be Mr. Dearing, my name is Catherine Blake" and she proffered her hand.

He took it lightly, "Yes that's me, but how can I help". In the back of his mind he was thinking high class scam, he was confused, charmed and wary in equal measure.

Fortunately, Alison was behind him and she had no such weaknesses.

"How can we help you" she demanded "We aren't used to strangers arriving unannounced"

Catherine smiled even more and gave a little laugh, "That's not what I have heard, but I would like to explain".

Alison's arms were firmly crossed, "Well explain then" she wasn't smiling.

Catherine's smile was still there, "It's a bit more complicated than you might think, I really need to come in and talk to you".

Alison looked at her, "We don't buy from the doorstep and we don't have strangers in the house, we have never met you before, so sorry you can't come in".

Bryan was looking less sure, but he wasn't going to argue with Alison. He had done it once before in their marriage and it hadn't ended well for him.

Catherine was STILL smiling "I understand your reticence, but I am not selling anything and actually we have met before. Really we have, some years ago. I know you won't recognise me".

They looked at her then, seeking some familiarity, before Alison spoke. She had a sixth sense already that something momentous was about to happen.

"You had better come in"

They were sat around the breakfast bar, cups of tea in hand before anyone spoke again.

Bryan was looking at her quizzically "You say we have met before, when was that roughly"?

Her lovely blue eyes peered back at him over the tea cup, "Nothing roughly about it, it was exactly fty years ago, tomorrow."

"Rubbish" stuttered Bryan, "you're not fifty years old..." but his protestation died in the air as he looked at his wife.

Alison's face was drained of colour, tears were falling down both cheeks, and then he too, understood.

They stood then this trio, hugging and crying, tears of joy and sorrow, unable to speak.

Eventually through his tears Bryan was asking, "But how did you nd us after all this time"

"I have money and so these things are possible. Could you tell me how it happened?"

So Alison did, through her tears, she explained how she and Bryan had been returning from her mothers house, that February evening around six o'clock, very cold she remembered and a clear sky. Nestled in close together they were walking past the church when Alison heard what sounded like a cry. Bryan thought she had imagined it but there it was again, more insistent this time, definitely a cry and coming from the church.

The MILEATERS out and about...

...Annual Away Days in Minehead - Tony Seigal

Two Martinstonian dogs and their nineteen mile-eating companions enjoyed three days of sunshine and clear September skies at the North eld Hotel located in the quiet and charming outskirts of Minehead, on the edge of Exmoor. We enjoyed the beautiful garden and terrace and the braver of us made good use of the indoor pool and the temperamental jacuzzi. But of course we were there primarily for the walking.

Our thanks must go to whoever we believe organised the weather and all the more to Nick whom we know devised and led the walks. This year he had to do that without face to face knowledge of the area relying on his skill and perseverance. Nick created walks that were varied, taking in woods, dramatic cliff views, open countryside. They included Dunster, Selworthy Beacon and Selworthy village, and the remnants of Burgundy chapel just (deeply) off the coastal path. As we have come to expect, he built in exibility to cater for different needs and capacities; and as always he led with quiet authority and good humour.

An unusual addition to a Mileaters' holiday, afternoon hotel tea, was appreciated. Even those initially sceptical were seen tucking into the scones and cake. And it afforded the opportunity to celebrate Louisa's birthday. She seems to be making a habit of having her birthday in September, the traditional month for these annual excursions.

And that's when they found her, this tiny crying bundle, hours old, wrapped in a blanket.

"We just ran back to mothers with you".

"We only had you for a few hours, before the police came and took you away. We didn't hear anymore for months and then we heard you had been adopted".

"And that was it until now".

Catherine face was a mascara camouflage, "Have you got children of your own" she asked.

They both shook their heads, "Wanted them but it never happened" said Bryan "Ironic isn't it".

Catherine held both their hands in hers and looked at them, smiling a teary smile

"Well then, you'll just have to make do with me"!

Dog Attack...

I would like to thank my wonderful friends and neighbours in the village, for their care, concern and support, following the attack by a Staffie on my little dog Lulu. This happened in the field by Four Acres, on 17th September. The Staffie charged towards her and gripped her in its teeth and wouldn't let go, despite me hitting it on the head. The owner eventually appeared and managed to prise its jaws apart. Lulu fell to the floor in total shock and bleeding from several puncture wounds on her stomach and legs.

A neighbour very kindly gave me a lift to the vets, where they kept Lulu in for the afternoon to ascertain her injuries. They secured the wounds with staples and thankfully the damaged was not as severe as it could have been.

She was totally traumatised for several days, not eating and hardly moving. After five days she started to wag her tail when visitors came to visit her, and then I knew she was on the mend.

Thankfully she has recovered physically, but who knows what mental scars it has left. She is an intelligent dog, so will be very cautious of other dogs for quite a while. I was also extremely shaken by the occurrence and when I closed my eyes, I replayed the event hearing her cries of pain, unable to help her. The owner of the Staffie accepted responsibility and has since paid all the vet's bills.

Once again, my gratitude to all concerned – you know who you are.

A big thank you to all of Martinstown for your help in completing the Parish Council feedback survey.

We will work with you over the coming months to address the issues you have highlighted of most concern.

The survey results and report can be found in full on the PC website, but in the meantime, here are just a few highlights:

• Head and shoulders above other options the favourite location of the Queen's Platinum Jubilee tree was the Village Green

• The proposal to incorporate the McDonalds site into the Parish was not well supported

• On village maintenance the most popular improvements needed were footpath & bridleway maintenance, stream clearance and grass verge cutting

• On soft traf c calming Community Speed Watch, relocation and improvement to village boundary signs and keeping stream verges short to give a sense of place were the best supported

• There was very clear support for the Council's current policy objecting to new home applications until the sewage issue is resolved. You also indicated that affordable homes were important and that whilst development on brown eld sites should be supported development on green eld sites should not

• Looking at the performance of the Parish Council you indicated that improvement was needed in many areas, but you particularly indicated low con dence in our ability to spend funds wisely, work effectively with Dorset Council in maintaining the village and have a clear strategy for the village

This is just a taster there is much more in the full survey report and of course there are many of your own ideas and thoughts which we will also be reflecting upon.

Again, thank you for your feedback
Cllrs Daw, Delafield and Follett.

It's been a long 18 months without being able to sing as a group, but, barring any reimposition of restrictions, it finally looks as though we are now allowed to make music together. So the Winterbourne Singers will once again be coming together fortnightly on a Friday evening in St. Martin's church from 7 to 8.15 p.m. to sing music of many different kinds, both sacred and secular, principally just for the enjoyment of it. There's no doubt that a session of singing can really lift your spirits and after what we've all been through, everyone needs that.

Singers are invited to donate £1 each session towards church overheads, but music is provided. It probably helps if you can read music a little, but that's certainly not essential – other singers will help you along – and there's no audition to get through!

Our initial meeting dates are 10th & 24th September, then continuing fortnightly up to Christmas.

If you'd like to join us, please contact Peter Wilkinson - either email to: p_wilkinson@hotmail.com or phone 889077.
